Literature Paper 1: Section A ('Romeo and Juliet')
Part A – Extract-based Question

Structure: Introduction

- In your introduction, you should give a brief summary of the extract, identify where in the play the extract is from (beginning/middle/end) and comment on form.

SENTENCE STARTERS

The extract is from... (what is happening? What has happened before?)
· In this extract, Shakespeare describes... (very brief overview)
· It is written in the form of a...

MODEL

The extract is from Act One Scene Two. Here, Lord Capulet and Paris are discussing the possibility of Paris marrying Capulet's daughter, Juliet. The scene is used to show the different roles that Capulet has to play within Veronese society. It is written in a combination of blank verse and rhyming verse to show the high status of the two characters.

Structure: Main paragraphs

SENTENCE STARTERS

· At the beginning/middle/end of the extract, Shakespeare presents the character of _____ as...
· This is shown/evident/illustrated/demonstrated when ... (quote)
· Shakespeare uses _____ (name of device) to...
· The adjective/verb/noun/etc '_____' has connotations of... which suggests...
· Shakespeare uses this language/structure to...

Model:

In the beginning of the extract, Shakespeare presents Romeo and feeling overjoyed and in love. His feeling of elation is evident when Romeo exclaims "unaccustomed spirit lifts me above the ground with cheerful thought". This suggests that Romeo is so ecstatic that he feels he can fly. Shakespeare uses a metaphor to show that love has the power to make Romeo feel delighted. The adjective 'cheerful' has connotations of excitement, happiness and joy. Shakespeare uses this language to make the audience feel pleased that Romeo is safe and unharmed.

Literature Paper 1: Section A ('Romeo and Juliet')
Part B – Whole-text question

Structure: Introduction

You need to give a brief summary of the play, discuss the importance of the theme and Shakespeare's intent in discussing this theme.

SENTENCE STARTERS

· 'Romeo and Juliet' was written by...
· The play is about...
· The theme of _____ is important because...
· At the time, ...
· Shakespeare wrote the play to...

Model:

Shakespeare's play, 'Romeo and Juliet', is a tragedy written in the Elizabethan era that focuses on the plight of the lovers and their inevitable deaths. The theme of death is significant throughout the play; from the opening prologue where Shakespeare reveals they will kill themselves, right until the final act where their deaths bring peace and unity between the warring enemies. In this play Romeo and Juliet are not the only ones to die, the deaths of Mercutio and Tybalt as well as Paris add to the drama and entertainment for the audience. In the 1600s honour and reputation were important and it wasn't unusual to die fighting to protect your family name which Shakespeare includes in his play. Also, this theme helps to reinforce the religious views of society and the belief in witchcraft and fate at this time, raising questions about whether life is pre-destined.

Structure: Main Paragraphs

You need to give a brief summary of the play, discuss the importance of the theme and Shakespeare's intent in discussing this theme.

SENTENCE STARTERS

- Shakespeare explores the theme of _____ through...
- At the beginning of the play... / Throughout the play... / In Act ____ Scene _____....
- This suggests that...
- At the time, ...
- Shakespeare explores this theme to...

Model:

In 'Romeo and Juliet', Shakespeare explores the theme of violence through its relation to fate Throughout the play, Shakespeare questions whether characters' actions are as a result of fate or free will, with characters such as Romeo, suggesting that violence is caused by fate and therefore inescapable. In the Act 1 Scene 1, Shakespeare begins the play with a violent encounter between Capulet and Montague servants as a result of their feud. Sampson claims 'a dog of the house of Montague moves me', suggesting that they are surrounded by violence and therefore may not have the option to abstain from violence. At the time, it was a Christian society who believed their lives were pre-determined and their fate was chosen for them. Here, Sampson is implying that he is governed by instinct rather than acting out of his own freewill. Therefore, Shakespeare uses the theme of violence to question whether society is governed by fate or blame fate for their decision to act violently.

Literature Paper 1: Section B ('Journey's End')

Structure: Introduction

- In this section of the paper, you will be required to write a contextual essay.
- This means that you need to know about World War One and discuss how this is shown through the play.

SENTENCE STARTERS

·'Journey's End' was written by...
· The play is set...
· The plot is about...
· Sherriff wrote the play to...

Model:

'Journey's End' was written by R. C. Sherriff in 1928. The play is set in the trenches of St. Quentin, France during World War One. The plot is about the experiences of soldiers in the days leading up to the Spring Offensive. Sherriff wrote the play to expose the truth of the mental and physically suffering of soldiers.

Structure: Main Paragraphs

- You need to aim for three/four paragraphs exploring a range of characters.
- You need to include relevant context and consider how this is explored in the play.
- Remember to be clear about Sherriff's intent – why does he include each character/event?

SENTENCE STARTERS

· Sherriff uses the character of _____ to explore...
· At the time/ During World War One / During the First World War...
· The theme of _____ / This is illustrated when...
· This suggests/emphasises/highlights... / This demonstrates that...
· Therefore, Sherriff uses the character/theme of _____ to question/challenge/reveal...

Model:

Sherriff explores the reality of war through the trauma experienced by soldiers. At the beginning of the war, the government used propaganda to present war as an exciting opportunity for young men to entice them to enlist. Further, upper-class boys were trained for war through contact sports and being taught the values of duty, responsibility and leadership at public school. Once young men entered the front lines however, they soon realised they were completely unprepared for the horrific reality of war. Within the play, Stanhope copes with the 'strain' of war through drinking, admitting to Osborne at the end of Act 1, 'without being doped with whisky, I'd go mad with fright'. This emphasises how traumatic war was as even a Captain was unable to cope with the death and destruction brought on by war. This is reinforced by the altercation between Stanhope and Hibbert in Act 2 Scene 1. When Stanhope threatens to shoot Hibbert for desertion, Hibbert claims that he would rather die than continue fighting: 'I'll never go into those trenches again. Shoot!" Sherriff uses this event to reveal the extent to which soldiers were traumatised by war. Hibbert is willing to be considered a coward and bring shame to his entire family in order to not have to continue fighting.
